EXPORT TRADE

Expansion Shown Waste Silk Cocoons Wool and Hides

THE export trade, although it has been laboring under peculiar handicaps by reason of transportation difficulties consequent upon the political turmoil in the country and the poverty of the demand from abroad for China's products, has given a better account of itself during the first half of this year than even optimists expected. The exports from Shanghai afford a justification for believing that the comparative improvement, when taken with the similar period last year, must have been reflected in the returns of other important ports of China.

In most cases there has been a marked expansion in the volume of exports. For instance, taking six articles at random from the varied list we notice that ten show quite appreciable gains, ranging from 20 to over 80 percent. In waste silk the exports for the first half of this year from Shanghai reached the total of 53,382 piculs against 33,273 piculs for the first half of last year, an increase of 20,109 piculs. Taking the commercial year July 1, 1922 to June 30, 1923 the exports reached the total of 114,646 piculs against 71,303 piculs for a similar period of the previous year. Nearly half this quantity went to France, her takings being 54,619 piculs, Japan being a poor second on the list with 16,724 piculs to her credit and America running very close on her heels with 15,759 piculs. Venice is credited with 10,719 piculs and Genoa 7,458 piculs. The export of this consists principally of tussah, cocoon strippings and Shangtung long waste silk.

COCOON EXPORTS

In cocoons the export level is practically maintained if we take the commercial year statistics, although the first half of this year shows an advance over the comparative figures of the previous year. From July, 1922 till June 30 of this year Shanghai exported 21,361 piculs against 21,442 piculs, while for the first half of this year the exports reached the figure of 8,713 piculs against 7,610 piculs, an increase for the first half of this year of 1,103 piculs. Japan, as in previous years, has taken practically the whole of this quantity. Owing to the [illegible] silk from abroad these last few days the cocoon market has been extremely firm, a good amount of business being reported. There has been a sharp jump of over Tls. 20 per picul in values. Anhwei cocoons are standing at Tls. 205 to Tls. 210 per picul according to grade, and Tls. 185 to Tls. 237 per picul for the Wushi variety.

The transhipment trade in sheep's wool has been able to keep its head up, the exports during the commercial year under review showing an export from Shanghai of 461,649 piculs against 410,533 piculs during 1921-1922. If we take the first half of this year into consideration, the figures disclose an increase of 20,764 piculs compared with the same period last year.

MINOR CHANGES

Goat's wool and camel's wool show small changes, in the case of the former there being an increase of 441 piculs for the commercial year and in the case of the latter a decrease of 1,030 piculs. America has been the largest purchaser of sheep's wool, taking 444,619 piculs out of a total of 461,649 piculs, while of goats' wool, England and America took the bulk, the share of England being nearly 10,000 piculs and of America 6,112 piculs out of a total export for the year of 17,702 piculs. Competition existed in the market for camel's wool, the United Kingdom being credited with a larger consumption than any other market, 34,009 piculs going there against 19,370 piculs to the United States.

The good trade in hides that was experienced is reflected in the trade return. If we take the first half of this year the export figures reveal an increase of 57,-630 piculs (172,567 against 114,-937 piculs), while for the year 1922-1923 the increase is greater, being 193,761 piculs over 1921-1922. The insistent demand from the United States for good quality hides, the supply of which, by the way, was not up to the demand this season, accounts for America taking from Shanghai 70,487 piculs against 48,014 piculs by Japan and 39,851 piculs by Germany. There is no doubt that were the make maintained at a higher level Germany's position in this list would have been transposed from third to first position. There has been a strong demand for hides at full prices, good cargo commanding higher than market values. The demand

NEGOTIATIONS ON

General Giardini Is Given Welcome In Fiume

(Exclusive China Press)

Geneva, Sept. 18.—According to the Milan papers the populations of Fiume enthusiastically welcomed General Giardini, the new governor, on his arrival from Rome.

Italy is moving large numbers of troops along the Jugo-Slav frontier to be prepared for all eventualities.

London reports have it that four and one-half divisions of Italian regulars and a large number of black troops have been concentrated in the north.

(Reuter's Service)

Geneva, Sept. 13.—Interviewed by Reuter's correspondent, M. Yovanovitch, the second member of the Yugo-Slav Delegation, declared that the new development at Fiume did not affect the question at present being negotiated between Rome and Belgrade. Yugo-Slava desired to continue the negotation. In the event of failure, the matter could be submitted to arbitration by the Swiss President or to the Council of the League of Nations.

SPAIN RESUMES NORMAL PATHS; MILITARY RULE

Barcelona Debates Whether New State Is Not Better Than Old

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, Sept. 18.—The Temps notes that political life is resuming its normal aspect in Spain. In certain circles it is being asked whether the military elements, who have thus taken possession of the whole administrative machinery, will be fit to carry out the business to the end.

The population of Barcelona is quiet and appears to consider the new state of affairs preferable to the previous syndicalist terrorism.

Madrid, Sept. 18.—General de Rivera, replying to a letter from the ex-Premier, Marquis de Alhucemas, permits him to reside where he chooses. He trusts that the results of the legal proceedings against his Government, which had "displayed the worst vices," will show that Marquis de Alhucemas, himself, is not responsible as everybody admits his personal honesty.

The ex-Premier, Senor J. Sanchez Guerra, has made a statement defending the Conservative Party, of which he is leader, and declaring that the upholders of a Constitutional Monarchy and Parliamentary institutions are confronted with rebellion and the country disapproves of the wild attacks of the new regime against the honor of all the old organised parties.

Senor Guerra in conclusion says that he will place no obstacle in the path of the present regime, but he will withdraw from politics pending the realisation of the dreams of those responsible for the present adventure or the arrival of terrible disasters.

Russian Fleet's Leader Issues Statement Here As To Refugee Situation

Arriving at Shanghai with 842 Russian troops aboard three transports, General Gleboff, "White" leader, who has been located at Gensan, Korea, during recent months, issued a statement of reassurance to THE CHINA PRESS yesterday as regards the landing of refugees here.

General Gleboff, who is at present at the Palace Hotel, declares that his fleet is sufficiently well equipped to make the landing of men here unnecessary. He states that he wished to make necessary repairs to his vessels and that thereafter he will sail. At the same time, he states that he can see no reason why some of his men should not land here to secure work. There are no women or children in the contingent, he declares, and he does not wish to add to the refugee problem here.

His statement follows:

"On my way from Korea, where I had my troops engaged on public work, which is now finished, I arrived at Woosung with three transports.

"To avoid any misunderstanding with regard to the general situation in connection with my arrival I beg to inform you about the group of troops I am in command of at present, and the purposes of our coming to Shanghai.

STILL IN "ALLIED CAUSE"

"1—On the three transports, which belong to the Russian empire and are still under the preserved Russian flag, there are 842 men. These men, who are still upholding the duty to the Allies of the Great War, are not political refugees, but troops of the late Russian Government.

"2—There are no women or children on board the above transports.

"3—All these Russians are well provided with the necessary foodstuffs for four months, with the exception of meat; besides this, they have also been provided with necessary funds to enable them to satisfy their needs for a considerably longer period. Therefore none of these people will be landed and thus will cause no troubles to the local authorities, nor to local charitable institutions.

"My plans about the future of this group are based on the following foundations:

"Firstly, it is my profound belief that the present barbarian state of affairs in Russia will not continue too long.

"Secondly, surely the community sense of justice will permit 842 persons to find a place where they could procure work and opportunity for an honest living.

REPAIRS NECESSARY

"It is quite necessary for me to call at Shanghai to make essential repairs before proceeding further, as the transport 'Mongugais' boilers are badly leaking, and also to make different repairs to the two other transports—without which repairs under no circumstances can I go out to sea, because the boats will not be seaworthy.

"I expect that my stay here

NEW FINANCIAL PLAN PROPOSED IN GERMAN BILL

Would Sever Reichsbank From State Finances And Form New Bank

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, Sept. 19.—A draft bill for the creation of a stable currency provides for the complete severance of the Reichsbank from state finances, thus enabling it to fulfil the functions of a gold note bank.

During the transitional period and until the State Budget is balanced, a new bank will be created to issue notes sufficient only to cover state expenditure. These notes will be backed by a gold guarantee, furnished by agriculture, commerce, industry, and the banks and will be legal tender. Paper marks will be small change for them, at a fixed rate of exchange.

It is reported that the Minister of Finance is preparing increases in Customs rates varying from 33 to 100 percent for the purpose of restricting the import of luxuries.

600 Buildings Were Destroyed By Flames

TWO ARE KILLED

Students Crushed To Death In Burning Building

(Reuter's Service)

Berkeley, Cal., Sept. 18.—Two students of the University of California were crushed to death beneath the roof of a burning building. Many persons were injured. Six hundred buildings were destroyed and 2,000 people are homeless.

The damage is estimated at $10,000,000. Only a sudden change of wind saved the entire city and the University buildings from complete destruction.

(Exclusive China Press)

Berkeley, Cal., Sept. 19.—Investigations started today into the cause of the great conflagration which swept Berkeley yesterday and last night indicate that the flames originated in a "grass fire" started by residents of the city to clear up dead leaves and withered foliage.

The flames, aided by a strong wind, soon got beyond all control and attacked a group of nearby dwellings from which they spread throughout the city. Only a sudden change of wind saved the business district and the university buildings from destruction.

Judge Lobingier Overrules Demurrer; Kearney Must Face Conspiracy Charge

Court Holds U. S.-China Treaties Are Valid In Highly Important And Interesting Decision

Captain L. D. Kearney must stand trial on charges of conspiracy with Admiral Starck of the Imperial Russian Navy and others in the importation of arms and munitions of war from Russian vessels anchored off Woosung Forts last November.

Judge Charles Sumner Lobingier yesterday handed down a decision overruling the demurrer filed by Mr. C. S. Franklin, counsel for Captain Kearney, and holding that the three treaties of 1844, 1858 and 1903, under which Kearney is charged, are in full force and effect and that any actions committed contrary to their provisions are illegal.

The decision, which ends one of the most important and unique legal battles ever heard in the American Court, holds that "offenses are acts prohibited by law and punishable by public prosecution," and that "the law which prescribes an offense need not be statutory."

Judge Lobingier also held that "treaties, as part of 'the supreme law of the land' may prescribe offenses, at least when committed outside of domestic territory," and that "such offenses thus prescribed are 'against the United States' within the meaning of the provision penalising conspiracy."

TREATIES HOLD

In holding that the treaties against which Mr. Franklin directed his demurrer were constitutional Judge Lobingier held that "the treaty making power of the United States is not limited to provisions relating solely to the signatory powers; it may extend to subjects affecting the rights and liberty of individuals," and "a treaty is not impliedly abrogated by a subsequent one unless the latter expressly incorporates all of its provisions."

On the last point Judge Lobingier holds against Mr. Franklin's contention that the treaties successively abrogated themselves and were superseded by President Harding's proclamation of March 4, 1922, and holds with U. S. District Attorney Leonard G. Husar that the President's proclamation does not cover the whole subject matter as the treaties deal generally with contraband articles while the proclamation merely prohibits the export of arms and munitions of war from the United States.

Judge Lobingier also disqualifies the effectiveness of the American Legation's letter to Mr. Franklin through Consul J. P. Davis to which they stated that the American Government was interested only in upholding the President's proclamation.

Mr. Franklin's second contention that the treaties, even if valid, are not self-executing, is also overruled by Judge Lobingier.

THE DECISION

Judge Lobingier's complete decision was as follows:

"The defendant is prosecuted under the following provision:

"If two or more persons conspire either to commit any offense against the United States, or to defraud the United States in any manner or for any purpose, and one or more of such parties do any act to effect the object of the conspiracy, each of the parties to such conspiracy shall be fined not more than ten thousand dollars, or imprisoned not more than two years, or both." (1).

The information charges that defendant,

"On or about November 20, 1922, and upon several days thereafter at the city of Shanghai, Republic of China, and within the jurisdiction of the above entitled Court, did wilfully, knowingly, maliciously, unlawfully and feloniously, conspire, confederate and agree with one Admiral Stark, George A. Mayer, Harry Horowitz and Y. T. Foo, and other parties whose names are unknown, to commit an offense against the United States of America, to wit, to wilfully, knowingly, unlawfully and feloniously trade in contraband articles of merchandise, to wit, machine guns, bayonets, rifles, cartridges, pistols, revolvers, field artillery pieces, and other arms, ammunitions and munitions of war, in violation of Article XXXIII of the Treaty of Wang-Hea, entered into between the United States of America and the Government of China, in 1844; and Article XIV of the Treaty of Tientsin,

Veterans Of Europe Lend Aid In Campaign

(BY UNITED PRESS)

Indianapolis, Sept. 19.—Fifteen governors of states, twenty-two United States senators and ninety-three representatives have given their approval to the proposal advanced by the American Legion to call an international conference on limitation of aircraft.

Meanwhile, it is learned here that the war veterans of France, England, Rumania and Belgium are campaigning to force their governments to agree to such a conference.

If the meeting is held, it will probably take place at Washington.

NEWSPAPERS IN NEW YORK HIT BY BIG STRIKE

Forced To Stop Publication When Printers Walk Out Suddenly

(Reuter's Service)

New York, Sept. 18.—As a result of the printers' strike, only a Labor daily and one or two suburban papers and foreign journals are being published.

The newspaper publishers have decided to run off a common edition bearing the names of all the newspapers affected by the strike.

The Labor newspaper, The Call, had an enormous circulation in banking and business quarters.

(BY UNITED PRESS)

New York, Sept. 19.—The New York Evening Post is the only newspaper in the city that is issuing today, publication of all of the other daily newspapers here having been suspended as a result of the sudden strike of printers.

Stock tickers, bulletins in store windows, and megaphones on the streets are helping to distribute the news to erstwhile readers of the papers.

The Evening Post declares that the International Typographical Union does not favor the present strike and challenges the statement to the contrary made by the local union.

(Reuter's Service)

New York, Sept. 18.—The big daily papers failed to appear this morning as the result of a lightning strike of printers at midnight.

CHANGSHA NOW MENACED AGAIN BY TAN YEN-KAI

Chao Heng-ti's Men In Flight; Threaten To Loot City First

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Sept. 19.—The reports with regard to the Yiyang Maru outrage at Fowchow differ as to the exact casualties. According to the most recent authoritative information, the Japanese chief engineer was not killed but is being held prisoner by the Kweichow troops together with the chief officer and the Chinese comprador. It is confirmed that the Kweichow troops are demanding ransom of $1,000,000 for these captives and are threatening to kill them if the Northerners attack.

The situation at Changsha has again changed. General Tan Yen-kai's forces are again victorious and General Chao Heng-ti's men are fleeing and are threatening to loot Changsha before leaving it. A party of Japanese marines landed to protect Japanese interests. American marines are protecting the Consulate and other buildings.

The Hsiangkiang Maru which arrived at Changsha on September 17, reported that she had been heavily fired on by a part of General Tan Yen-kai's troops on the way.

A British steamer which arrived at Changsha on September 18 also reported that she had been under heavy fire. A British gunboat escorting her returned fire. It is believed that there were casualties on both sides.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Sept. 15.—News emanating apparently from quarters favourable to General Chao Heng-ti give an optimistic view of the situation in Hunan. According to this report General Chao is recruiting troops at Liling, while his follower General Sung Ti-ping has re-occupied Yuyang. General Chao Heng-ti, according to a telegram reaching here last night had advanced to Shaho, about ten miles from Changhsa, and the recapture of that city was confidently expected within a day or two.

Black Wooden Crosses Mark Graves Of British Quake Dead At Yokohama

Buildings Still Standing In Japan's Great Seaport Can Be Counted On Fingers Of One Hand, Correspondent Reports

(Reuter's Service)

Yokohama, Sept. 16.—Reuter's special correspondent revisited Yokohama today after an interval of four months. The spectacle of destruction and desolation is overwhelming. No foreigners are ashore except hard-working relief parties. The buildings standing in the city can be counted on the fingers of one hand, and all, of course, are uninhabitable.

The correspondent walked into what had been the British Consulate. There, beside the tennis court, are a few graves containing the remains of Mr. I. C. Morrison of the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank, Mr. P. A. Cabeldu, Mrs. Nicoll and her daughter, Helen (both of whom were crushed to death by the collapse of the Chartered Bank, outside which they had been waiting for Mr. Nicoll, an employe of the Bank), Mr. H. A. Horne, Mr. W. Haigh, Mr. D. Waddell and Mr. J. Lyes. Little black wooden crosses with names in white mark where these British victims of the earthquake are buried.

SAD STORIES

Th search parties tell numerous sad stories. While burying Dr. Wheeler, the Rev. Eustace Strong was asked by a woman if he would bury her husband. "Where is the body?" he asked. Here, she replied, undoing colored handkerchiefs in which was a bundle of ashes. They now lie beside Dr. Wheeler.

Dr. Hingston of the British Hospital returned to his house to look for the body of his wife. One of his servants handed him a bowl of ashes—all that remained of her.

The son and daughter-in-law of Mr. J. P. Mollison were immovably pinned under the stairs. Their house-servants say that they were able to see and speak to each other till the fire consumed them.

Mr. Eastman, a well-known resident of the Bluff, was found in his dog kennel on the third day after the fire. His house had fallen in and he had been injured but was only able to crawl into the kennel.

INTENSE HEAT

Some idea of the intensity of the fire here can be obtained from the fact that the steel lining inside the strong room of the Chartered Bank was too hot to be touched on the tenth day after the fire. On that day, a party went ashore to open the Chartered Bank's safes. After penetrating two feet into the wall, they found the steel lining so hot that the party felt that it would be advisable to postpone operations for another ten days. Some papers inside one of the British Consulate safes caught fire on the door being opened.

All the books of the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank were got out of the building before the fire as a result of strenuous work, but they they were destroyed by fire on the pier to which they were taken.

A number of knotty problems arising from the fact that so many documents have been destroyed await settlement. For example, the question is being asked what will happen in the case of securities held by banks, which together with the receipts for them have been burnt, and also what will happen about goods, which were insured by British and American exporters for ten days after arrival and were burned during that period. In the documents regarding such insurances there is no mention of fire following an earthquake as in the case of ordinary insurances.

The idea that Yokohama will be rebuilt enters into the minds of very few of those who have seen it after the fire. It will depend upon whether in the scheme for the reconstruction of Tokio provision is made for making Tokio a great port, which those in a position to know say is quite possible by dredging the passage up to Shibaura.

Refugees Who Are Safe

Mr. J. P. Davis, Acting Consul-in-Charge at the American Consulate-General, has received from Mr. S. D. Rowlands of Manila, who is a member of the International Relief Committee of Kobe, a complete list of all foreign refugees from Yokohama and Tokio who had registered up to and including September 15. The list is so long that it is inadvisable to publish it but Mr. Davis will be pleased to answer personal or telephone calls relative to any friends or relatives of Shanghai people who have not been heard from.

The list, among other names, includes the following people who have previously been counted as reported dead or missing:

Mr. and Mrs. L. Nieuman, Mr. J. A. Roberts, Mr. W. H. Robinson, Mr. P. P. Steintort, Mr. R. C. Balden, Mr. W. F. Balden, Mr. and Mrs. J. Laviov, Miss Hilda Piggott, Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Xavier, Mr. J. MONEY WOES STRESSED BY DUTCH QUEEN

Financial Situation Still Disquieting, She Declares

(Reuter's Service)

The Hague, Sept. 18.—Queen Wilhelmina, accompanied by the Prince Consort and the Queen Mother, today opened the session of the States-General.

In her speech, the Queen pointed out that the financial and economic situation was still disquieting. Vigorous measures must be taken speedily to equalise receipts and expenditure and to restrict State expenses.

Relations with the other Powers Her Majesty stated, were friendly but the international situation was still uncertain. The state of political and economic collapse left by the war continued. The interests of humanity required a change, which justified the wish for speedy solutions of pending problems, thus opening the road towards urgently necessary restoration.

The speech foreshadowed bills modifying the fiscal system, improving social insurance legislation and for administrative and legislative revision in the Dutch Indies, involving constitutional change and the handing over of the Billiton tin mines to a State company jointly with the Billiton Company, the Government having a preponderant influence.

Singapore Base Is Held A Vital Need

(Reuter's Service)

Colombo, Sept. 18.—Interviewed by Reuter's correspondent here today on his way to London, Mr. S. M. Bruce, the Commonwealth Prime Minister, emphasised the vital necessity of the Singapore base which was not directed against any particular enemy. He said that the Australian Navy would retain a separate entity, but he expected to conclude arrangements permitting real peace time co-operation of Australian cruisers with the British Fleet.

EXTRACT FROM EXPERT REPORT:

"Having visited most of the cement factories of Great Britain, America and Europe, I am in a position to form an opinion of the relative merits and faults of each.....but my experiences lead me to the conclusion that 'pride of place' must unquestionably be given to the Holderbank Factory in Switzerland .....In design and construction it is a model without rival in any country." W. H. Brown, A. M. I. Mech. E., leading authority in England on cement manufacturing.

The Wisdom of the ancient Sage and the technical experiences of a modern authority on cement manufacturing have guided us to instal a set of machinery in our Laugwhe Works which is an exact model of the one used by the Holderbank factory, Switzerland, and supplied by the original patentees with numerous latest improvements. The cement we are now supplying our customers is the product of that "perfect instrument."

entered into between the United States of America and the Government of China in 1858; and Rule III of Article I of the Treaty entered into between the United States of America and the Government of China, dated October 8, 1903, which said Treaties, and each of them, are still in full force and effect."

To the foregoing a demurrer is interposed on the grounds:

"that (1) the treaties set forth in said information are not now in force and effect; and (2) that if said treaties are in force and effect the provisions thereof relating to arms and munitions of war have not the force and effect of law."

The treaty provisions relied upon are as follow:

"Citizens of the United States who shall attempt to trade clandestinely with such of the ports of China as are not open to foreign commerce, or who shall trade in opium or any other contraband articles of merchandise, shall be subject to be dealt with by the Chinese government without being entitled to any countenance or protection from that of the United States." (2).

The above was reincorporated into the next subsequent treaty (3) with slight change in the phraseology, but in the same year a separate treaty was negotiated which defines "contraband goods" as follows:

"Import and export trade is alike prohibited in the following articles: Gunpowder, shot, cannon, fowling-pieces, rifles, muskets, pistols and all other munitions and implements of war, and salt." (4).

In the annex to the latest of these treaties the following appears:

"Except at the requisition of the Chinese Government, or for sale to Chinese duly authorised to purchase them, Import trade is prohibited in all Arms, Ammunition, and Munitions of War of every description. No Permit to land them will be issued until the Customs have proof that the necessary authority has been given to the importer. Infraction of this rule will be punishable by confiscation of all the goods concerned." (5)

It is contended that each of these treaties supersedes and abrogates the preceding one, defendant's counsel citing the following dictum of a District Judge:

"I shall not consider the treaty of 1869, because as the treaty of 1880 covers the whole subject-matter of the former treaty, it may be considered as impliedly repealed." (6).

But the decisions (7) invoked by the author in support of this statement do not concern treaties and the doctrine seems inconsistent with an earlier and celebrated decision (8) of the Supreme Court, where in considering the first two American treaties with Japan the latter of which purported to revoke the other, it was observed:

"It will be thus perceived that the revocation of the treaty of 1857 was made upon the assumption and declaration that all its provisions were incorporated into the treaty of 1858. The revocations must, therefore, be held to be limited to those provisions and those only which are thus incorporated, that treaty still remaining in force as to the unincorporated provisions."

As there was no express revocation in the treaties now under consideration it would seem even more clear that any provisions of the earlier treaties not incorporated in the latest one are still in force. In fact it expressly so declares by the following:

"It is agreed between the High Contracting Parties hereto that all the provisions of the several treaties between the United States and China which were in force on the first day of January A.D. 1900, are continued in full force and effect except in so far as they are modified by the present Treaty or other Treaties to which the United States is a party." (9)

It would seem immaterial, therefore, whether or not the provisions of the earlier treaties are actually incorporated in the latest one. If they are they do not need reenactment and if they are not they must, nevertheless, be considered as still in force.

But counsel's main contention is that all of these provisions were superseded and abrogated by a Congressional "Joint Resolution to prohibit the exportation of arms or munitions of war from the United States to certain countries and for other purposes," approved January 31, 1922. (10) To this contention we cannot agree. The resolution does not seem even to meet the test of the dictum above cited, i.e., it does not "cover the whole subject-matter of the former treaties"; for they deal generally with contraband trade in China, while the resolution relates merely to "The exportation of arms or munitions of war from the United States." Not only is the scope of the resolution much narrower than that of the treaties, but it is evidently directed at those residing in another locality and intended to meet a different situation. Nor can we regard the expression contained in a consular letter produced by counsel to the effect that "there would appear to be no need to consult previous documents dealing with the matter" as equivalent to the construction of a treaty by the political department of the government which must be accepted by Courts within the rule (11) invoked by Counsel. International agreements of such vast and far-reaching importance as these three treaties between the United States and China cannot thus be disposed of.

SECOND CONTENTION

II

Assuming, however, that all of these treaty provisions are in force in some form, we have to consider counsel's further contention that they do not prescribe "an offense against the United States," within the terms of the statute above quoted penalizing the crime of conspiracy. It is claimed that these treaty provisions are not self-executing; but we are unable to see why not. They prohibit contraband trade in China on the part of American citizens, define its scope and impose penalties for carrying it on. True the penalties are somewhat unusual—requiring the offender "to be dealt with by the Chinese government" and, later, confiscation—but, as we shall presently see, this Court is empowered to impose additional ones. (12) These provisions appear to us practically equivalent to the ordinary penal statute and we see no reason why they could not be enforced by an ordinary criminal prosecution.

If, however, legislation was necessary to make these treaties operative, we think it has been provided. Within less than four years after the ratification of our treaty with China of 1844, Congress passed

"An act to carry into effect certain provisions in the Treaties between the United States and China and the Ottoman Porte giving certain judicial powers to Ministers and Consuls of the United States in those countries." (13)

The first two sections of this Act provided:

"to carry into full effect the provisions of the treaty of July third, eighteen hundred and forty-four, with the Chinese empire, the commissioner and consuls of the United States, duly appointed to reside in China shall, in addition to the other powers and duties imposed upon them by the provisions of said treaty, be vested with the judicial authority herein described which shall appertain to the said office of commissioner and consul, and be a part of the duties belonging thereto.

. . . in regard to crimes and misdemeanors, the said public functionaries are hereby fully empowered to arraign, and try in the manner herein provided all citizens of the United States charged with offenses against law, which shall be committed in the dominions of China, including Macao, and, upon conviction, to sentence such offenders in the manner herein authorized; and the said functionaries and each of them are hereby authorized to issue all such processes as are suitable and necessary to carry this authority into execution." (14)

Another section contains the following:

"In all cases, except as is herein otherwise provided, the punishment of crime provided for by this act shall be fine or imprisonment, or both, at the discretion of the functionary who decides the case, but subject to the regulations herein contained, and such as may hereafter be made. It shall, however, be the duty of each and every functionary to allot punishment according to the magnitude and aggravation of the offense." (15)

All of these provisions were re-enacted and extended to other countries by a subsequent statute (16) on the same subject and later carried into the Revised Statutes. (17) Finally the jurisdiction thereby granted was expressly transferred to this Court by the Act (18) creating it.

By this legislation, therefore, this Court is expressly empowered "to arraign and try . . . all citizens of the United States, charged with offenses against law," in China, and this grant of jurisdiction is made for the express purpose of carrying into full effect the provisions of the treaty." (19) Then, as if to meet just such a situation as this, the Court is authorized to supplement the treaty by imposing penalties at its discretion. (20)

Now the phrase "offenses against law" is much broader than if it had read "statutory" or even "common law" offenses. For in American jurisprudence a treaty is law. Nay, more, it is part of "the supreme law of the land." (21) Our constitution's greatest expounder, after calling attention to the fact that elsewhere a treaty is a mere compact between nations, says

"In the United States a different principle is established. Our Constitution declared a treaty to be the law of the land. It is, consequently, to be regarded in Courts of Justice as equivalent to an Act of Legislature, whenever it operates of itself without the aid of any legislative provision." (22)

Even earlier it had been observed by another eminent judge

"here is a treaty, the supreme law, which overrules all state laws upon the subject, to all intents and purposes; and that makes the difference. . . The treaty, then, as to the point in question, is of equal force with the constitution itself; and, certainly, with any law whatsoever." (23)

More recently in construing the same constitutional provision, the the Supreme Court said,

"A treaty, then, is a land of the land as an act of Congress is, whenever its provisions prescribe a rule by which the rights of the private citizen or subject may be determined. And when such rights are of a nature to be enforced in a court of justice, that court resorts to the treaty for a rule of decision for the case before it as it would to a statute." (24)

It seems clear, therefore, that "offences against law" include those prescribed by treaty equally with those defined by statute.

The phrase "offence against the United States," as used in the provision under which this prosecution is brought, is even broader, for it might include not only statutory and common law offences, but also those against international law which is in force in the United States. (25) For the term "offense" is anonymous (26) with "crime" which is defined by Blackstone as.

"An act committed, or omitted in violation of a public law, either forbidding or commanding it". (27)

This definition does not imply that the prohibition must be embodied in any particular form of law. A treaty which is part of "the supreme law of the land" certainly meets that requirement.

But it is contended that the President and the Senate had no power to negotiate a treaty which prescribed offenses—that such power belongs exclusively to Congress functioning with both houses. Authority for this contention is sought in a letter (28) of Thomas Jefferson, written, however, before he became president. Elsewhere he is found as the strong advocate of the supremacy of treaties. (29) Mr. Calhoun, who adhered in the main to the same school of political thought, after enumerating certain limitations which do not apply here, said:

"Within these limits all questions which may arise between us and other powers, be the subject-matter what it may, fall within the limits of the treaty-making power, and may be adjusted by it". (30)

We are cited to another early California opinion,

"That whenever the treaty embraces matters which are the subject of legislation by Congress, it will require an act of legislation to carry the treaty into effect". (31)

But more than half a century ago our Supreme Court rejected a similar contention, holding that a treaty could lawfully covenant for the issuance of a patent conveying government land without the consent of Congress. (32)

"Express power," says the Court, "is given to the President, by and with the advice of the Senate, to make treaties, provided two thirds of the Senators present concur and, inasmuch as the power is given in general terms, without any description of the objects intended to be embraced within its scope, it must be assumed that the framers of the Constitution intended that it should extend to all those objects which in the intercourse of nations had usually been regarded as the proper subjects of negotiation and treaty, if not inconsistent with the nature of our government and the relation between the states and the United States. (33)

In a later decision (34) the Supreme Court said,

"A treaty may also contain provisions which confer certain rights upon the citizens or subjects of one of the nations residing in the territorial limits of the other, which partake of the nature of municipal law, and which are capable of enforcement as between private parties in the courts of the country. An illustration of this character is found in treaties, which regulate the mutual rights of citizens and subjects of the contracting nations in regard to rights of property of

AMERICAN MAIL DUE HERE TODAY BY THE MADISON

Following the sailing of the President Lincoln for San Francisco yesterday morning, the next mail for the States will be dispatched on the President Madison early Saturday morning, and another mail from America will arrive on the President Wilson this morning.

The Madison is due in Shanghai from Hongkong at 9 o'clock Friday morning, and will dock at the China Merchants Central Wharf. The liner is to sail for Seattle via Japan ports at 7 o'clock Saturday morning.

Bringing mail from America, the President Wilson will arrive in Shanghai from San Francisco via Honolulu and Japan ports between 9 and 10 o'clock this morning, and is to dock at the China Merchants Lower Wharf. If the vessel may miss the morning tide, then it will dock in the afternoon. The Empress of Russia, another mail boat from America, is due at Woosung from Vancouver at 8 o'clock tomorrow night.

The tender with inbound passengers from the Russia is expected at the Customs jetty about 10:30 o'clock tomorrow night. The liner will sail for Hongkong direct Saturday evening, and the outgoing tender with passengers and baggage for Woosung will leave the Customs jetty at 2:30 p.m. Saturday.

A mail from the States arrived on the President Mckinley yesterday morning. The vessel has grounded on the mud during its shifting, but was expected to refloat at the evening tide, and dock at the China Merchants Central Wharf.

The McKinley will change its berth to the Standard Oil Wharf, Pootung, early tomorrow morning, and sails for Hongkong and Manila at 11 a.m. tomorrow. Passengers may board the steamer at the Central Wharf tonight, and for the benefit of those not so desiring, a tender has been arranged to leave the Customs jetty for the vessel at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

European mail will be sent on the Blue Funnel steamer Menter today, closing at 12 noon. The tender conveying passengers for the liner will leave the Customs jetty at 2 p.m.

Mission Worker Tells Conditions In Russia Today

Dr. J. T. Proctor, secretary of the Northern Baptist Mission, who has just returned to Shanghai from a trip through Russia, yesterday gave his impressions of the Soviet Government and of conditions as they are in Russia today.

The most interesting observation that Dr. Proctor brought back was the fact that the Patriarch Tikhon, who was arrested and sentenced to death by the Soviet, had been released and is now at the head of the 'Old' Russian Orthodox Church. The government owns all the church property and compells the 'Old' church to pay rent for the church, but otherwise has given no more hindrance to the church, Dr. Proctor said.

Petrograd is dead and badly in need of repairs, Dr. Proctor said, but Moscow is full of life and doing an active business.

from Japan had been very strong and buyers experienced difficulty in securing their requirements. Dealers found it difficult to fulfil their engagements owing to the difficulty of securing suitable weights out of the small stock available until the new season opens in winter.

UNTANNED SHEEPSKINS

There was a phenomenal increase in the export of untanned sheepskins during the first half of this year—86,079 pieces against 9,900 pieces during the first half of last year. When the whole of 1922-1923 is taken into consideration the increase is not as large, being 18,811 pieces against 9,900 pieces, or an improvement of 8,911, nearly a hundred percent increase. The disparity between the two periods will best be explained by the fact that in January, March and June of this year the export of untanned sheepskins was practically nil. October of last year showed itself to be a banner month the figure reaching the 27,462 mark, while the month previous and December last were the next best with a little over 18,000 pieces each The United States was the principal and practically the sole consuming market for untanned sheepskins from Shanghai.

In untanned goatskins, as well, America was the largest purchaser for out of a shipment of 7,875,547 pieces during 1922-1923 her share was 7,453,027 pieces. During the first half of this year the exports from Shanghai totalled 6,677,227 pieces against 8,042,866 pieces in the corresponding period last year, while in 1922-1923 the shipments amounted to 7,875,547 pieces against 9,757,880 pieces in 1921-1922.

America is also one of the best markets for sheep, goat and fancy skin rugs. During the first half of this year the shipments reached the total of 117,645 pieces compared with 91,417 pieces, while for the whole year the appreciation has been more notable 852,608 pieces against 323,810 pieces. London has been taking increasing quantities of these, and during the year held second place in the list, shipments to that port amounting to 284,569 pieces.

"Health Better than it has been for Years."

Our portrait is of Mrs. WOODROW, of 56, Robinson Road, Tooting, London, England, whose husband writes:

"My wife has suffered very badly for the past four or five years with Piles, being unable to sleep at night or get any relief during the day. She tried several advertised remedies, none of which did her any good. Some three weeks ago she thought she would try 'Clarke's Blood Mixture,' and before she had taken half a bottle she was better, and by the time she had finished the second bottle she was quite cured. She can now sleep well, eat well, and get about her work, and her general health is better than it has been for years." In a further letter some eight months later Mr. Woodrow writes: "I am pleased to say that since my wife's cure of Piles in September, 1918, there has been no sign of return of the trouble."

CLARKE'S BLOOD MIXTURE, by reason of its remarkable blood purifying properties, can be relied upon to give speedy relief and lasting benefit in cases of Eczema, Bad Legs, Abscesses, Ulcers, Boils, Pimples, Eruptions, Piles, Glandular Swellings, Rheumatism, Sciatica, Gout. Toussaint, Canavarro And Whitamore, Starton Teams To Play In Finals

First Named Players Defeat Wade And Ollerdes en In Straight Sets; Others Win Three In Four

The semi-finals of the Lawn Tennis Association's men's doubles tournament produced a surprise yesterday on the association's courts at the Hotel Majestic, Wade and Ollerdessen falling before the attack of Toussaint and Canavarro in straight sets, 6-2, 6-2, 6-2. The fact that the Ross players were beaten was not so surprising as the decisiveness of their defeat, nobody suspecting that a team with John Wade as one of the partners would be vanquished so completely.

In the other semi-final match Messrs. C. E. Whitamore and T. W. Sturton took the measure of Messrs. T. W. R. Wilson and C. Soufoulis, 6-4, 3-6, 6-2, 6-3.

The winners of this match will therefore meet Toussaint and Canavarro in the final, and on form and experience the two latter should win.

Most of the spectators at yesterday's matches elected to watch the Wade-Ollerdessen and Toussaint-Canavarro teams, and the choice was a good one as some flashy tennis was shown despite the unevenness of the score.

Canavarro, always a dangerous competitor in a tennis match, rose to great heights in his play yesterday and it was largely due to his sterling work that he and his partner won so decisively. Canavarro was all over the court and there seemed nothing that he couldn't accomplish. Some of his recoveries were hair-raising and his work at the net was absolutely air tight. Nothing got past him.

The games were distinguished by some brilliant volleying, the match furnishing the best "spectators' tennis" seen here this summer. At times the ball was shot back and forth so many times that the onlookers got dizzy watching it, and as the volleys were nearly all marked by remarkable recoveries the stands were held in a practically continuous state of breathlessness.

PACE TERRIFIC

The pace throughout was terrific—much faster than during the hot weather tournaments when the players had to think constantly of conserving their strength against a possible five set match. Yesterday, with the air balmy but not oppressive, the raquet wielders were "all out" and the speed they showed and maintained was remarkable.

Wade played his usual steady game and Ollerdessen gave him fair support, the latter's backhand play being particularly strong; but against the brand of tennis that Canavarro and Toussaint were putting up there was no chance for mere steadiness to get anywhere. Canavarro and Toussaint were simply in a streak and there was no stopping them. Fortune, always favoring a winner, seemed to help them along, most of the breaks of the games going their way. Many of their returns hit within inches of the line, whereas the attempted placements of the other pair, while equally close to the lines, were on the wrong side.

GOOD TEAMWORK

The winning pair played together beautifully. They gave the impression, in fact, of having played together for years, as each instinctively did the right thing at the right time. This, of course, is half the battle in doubles. Wade and Ollerdessen, on the other hand, seemed slightly confused and uncertain at times as to which one should take the ball. This interfered to a certain extent with their position play, with the result that on numerous occasions the winners found it easy to "hit where they weren't." This defect was not glaring by any means; but it was a factor that contributed to the defeat of the Recs' pair.

In the other match the play was fairly even throughout, but was nowhere near as brilliant as in the Wade-Toussaint contest. Whitamore and Sturton won the first set, after which Wilson and Soufoulis took one. The first named pair then settled down and took two straight sets in quick order. Soufoulis had a good service, scoring more service aces than any of the eight players involved in the semi-finals. Sturton's game was distinguished by a caution that won and saved many points for his team. Wilson shone in his return of high lobs, hitting many of them for sure kills.

A large crowd watched the contests.

Deciding Match Is Taken By America By 10 To 3

(Reuter's Service)

New York, Sept. 18.—The United States Army won the International Polo Championship, defeating the British Army in the final match by 10 goals to 3.

The Americans, who appeared to be apprehensive that their ponies would give out, rushed the game and secured a lead, from which they could not be dislodged.

The first half of the game was in the back-field, where Lieut.-Col. Brown and Major Behrd (United States) outplayed Major Hurnball and Major Lockett (Britain).

The British were apparently deficient in team-work, though their occasional individual feats thrilled the crowd.

RASSLERS SHAKE ALL FRENCHTOWN WITH FOUR BOUTS

Russians, With Aggregate Displacement Of Ton, Have Party

There was great excitement out at Siccawei last evening, due to the fact that the observatory seismographs suddenly began to shimmy all over the shop. This caused a momentary consternation among the French Fathers, who began to wonder if they hadn't been a bit hasty in spiking that Chinese prophesy about the world coming to an end this month.

Their fears were unfounded, however, as they learned after a brief investigation that all the upheavals were created by Jim Sullivan's fleet of Russian rasslers, down at the Stadium. These babies, with an aggregate displacement of a ton or more, were hosts at a flopping party that made the Frenchtown landlords, already terrorised by the reams of earthquake news that has been coming in lately, wish they had built their houses with rubber.

The Stadium itself, being of bamboo construction, proved its worth as an earthquake resister, and although badly bent it was still standing when the Behemoths had finished their entertainment.

The big battle of the evening was between George Kavsadzu and the "Unknown in a Black Mask." George flopped the unknown in seven minutes, with the rafters groaning and creaking an accompaniment. For good measure George floored another compatriot, one Vassilieff, in six minutes.

Other bouts were between Murmitz and Baumeister, this battle lasting 14 minutes before Murmitz won. Agapoff flattened Kuropatkin in 9 minutes.

For preliminaries there were two boxing bouts, both of which were characterised by Frank McGrath as wash-outs.

While the rasslers were shoehorning their massive frames out of their street clothes Billy Tingle, the Australian and Orient bantamweight champion, was introduced. He was properly acclaimed and immediately challenged by Kid Carletos.

A good boxing bill is being prepared for Saturday night, announcements of which will follow. The headliner on the bill, it is understood, will be a twelve round go between Billy Tingle and Garcia.

descent of inheritance, when the individuals concerned are aliens. The constitution of the United States places such provisions as these in the same category as other laws of Congress by its declaration that 'this Constitution and the laws made in pursuance thereof, and all treaties made or which shall be made under authority of the United States shall be the supreme law of the land.'"

"As expressed in the Constitution of the United States," observes a leading work (35) "the treaty making power is in terms unlimited."

That it

"extends to all proper subjects of negotiation between our government and the governments of other nations, is clear." (36)

Congress, indeed, is authorised "to exercise exclusive legislation" over certain specified territory (37) in which China is not included. But the power

"to define and punish piracies and felonies committed on the high seas and offences against the law of nations," (38) is not made exclusive and it would seem entirely permissible to define and punish "offenses against the law of nations" by treaty. Justice Story held that the African Slave Trade was such an offense and that a vessel engaged in it was subject to confiscation without even treaty authority, (39) saying

"No nation has a right to infringe the law of nations, so as thereby to produce an injury to any other nation."

Long afterward, the Supreme Court amplified this language as follows:

"The law of nations requires every national government to use 'due diligence' to prevent a wrong being done within its own dominion to another nation with which it is at peace, or to the people thereof." (40).

In 1890 the United States became the first signatory to the Anti-Slave Trade Act which prohibited the traffic in human beings, provided for the punishment of accessories and accomplices, and imposed penalties for the commission of prohibited acts. (41). And so late as 1906, the Senate ratified the Algeciras Convention which prohibited the introduction of contraband into Morocco and made it punishable by confiscation as well as by fine and imprisonment (42). Such repeated exercise of the power to prescribe offenses by treaty would seem to afford a practical construction by the political arm of the government which would bring this case within the doctrine already referred to as invoked by defendant's counsel (43). It must also be remembered that the treaties here involved deal entirely with foreign relations which is a natural and proper subject of treaties. They do not assume to legislate concerning offenses committed in domestic territory, but only those in foreign countries and in this respect they are similar to the ones just mentioned. If such provisions are valid (and so far as we know they have never been questioned) those invoked by the prosecution in this case are equally so. Early in the history of the Supreme Court, Justice Chase declared in a celebrated case,

"If the court possess a power to declare treaties void, I shall never exercise it, but in a very clear case indeed." (44)

After more than a century and a quarter the required "clear case" appears never to have arisen. In the leading commentary (45) on treaties it is observed:

"The fact which necessarily impresses itself most forcibly on the mind of anyone examining the cases cited in the preceding sections of this chapter is that no treaty, or legislation based on, or enacted to carry out, any treaty stipulations has ever been declared void or unconstitutional by any court of competent jurisdiction; notwithstanding the fact that in many cases the matters affected both as to the treaty and the legislation, are apparently beyond the domain of congressional legislation and in some cases of Federal jurisdiction. The people of the United States, as represented in Congress and by the Judiciary, have acquiesced in the exercise of this power and so far as all questions that have as yet arisen, or which are likely to arise in the near future, the treaty-making power is not restricted by any limitations which can be expressly defined at the present time."

If this record is to be broken it should be by some higher tribunal.

Defendant's counsel has presented an exhaustive and ingenious argument, but we are not convinced either that the treaties in question are abrogated or that the offense which they prescribe is beyond the treaty making power of the United States.

In cases like this

"The offense which is intended to be committed as the result of the conspiracy need not be described as fully as would be required in an indictment in which such matter was charged as a substantive crime." (46)

So construed, we think the information charges "an offense against the United States," prescribed by treaties constituting part of "the supreme law of the land," and which this Court is expressly authorised to enforce.

The demurrer is Overruled

Council Refuses Monopoly On Billboards

The Shanghai Municipal Council in a letter which is published in today's Municipal Gazette informs the Oriental Press that it is contrary to the Council's principles to allow a monopoly in Shanghai. The letter is in answer to a request from the Oriental Press that they be granted a monopoly on all billboard advertising in the Settlement.

Hongkew Market Again Becomes Peace Sector

Hongkew Market has quieted down and the vendors of market produce, to the number of 60, have accepted the new regulations and taken stalls on the second floor, according to today's Municipal Gazette.

For some weeks past a considerable amount of agitation has been in evidence in Hongkew Market in connection with an order that all stall holders in the market, engaged in the sale of cooked food, should remove to the second floor. The issue of these instructions became necessary owing to the increasing popularity of the market, which is the chief depot in the Settlement for the sale of market produce, and in which the congestion was becoming acute.

Representations on behalf of the stall holders affected, were made immediately, through numerous native organisations, pointing out that the removal order constituted unbearable hardship, in that purchasers would not trouble to mount the staircases, and that those affected would be deprived of their means of livelihood.

As a result of various interviews and of direct representation made by a delegation of the stall holders at the Municipal Offices, they were informed that the number of people using the market was now so great that the ground and first floors had necessarily to be allocated to the use of vendors of fresh meat and vegetables, that the claim of the cooked food dealers to vested rights was inadmissable, and that no relaxation could be made in the ruling that all vendors of cooked food must remove to the second floor, or make arrangements to carry on their business elsewhere.

After considerable discussion, and attempts on the part of those interested to intimidate some of their number who were disposed to comply with the new regulation, the vendors affected, some sixty in number, have now accepted the situation and are duly installed on the second floor of the market.

COMMUNISTS GAIN HOLD IN BADEN DISTRICT

Twenty-Five Percent Of All German Metal Works Are Now Idle

(Exclusive China Press)

Berlin, Sept. 18.—The communistic movement in the Baden industrial districts is extending. The number of strikers in the town near the Swiss frontier is increasing.

(Exclusive China Press)

Berlin, Sept. 18.—Twenty-five percent of all of the works of the German metal industry are now lying idle.

(French Wireless)

Paris, Sept. 18.—The parties of the Extreme Left and Extreme Right seem to be getting together in the occupied territory of Germany. A letter from Moscow, read at a Communist meeting at Bochum, warns Communists against a rapprochement with the Deutsche Volks Partei, and expresses the fear that the Nationalists would take advantage of them.

The question of wages is causing agitation amongst the miners on the left bank of the Rhine. The movement has spread to the Frederik mines where the workmen are claiming a six-hour day and an individual bonus to meet the high cost of living of 500,000,000 marks.

The Preussen, Gneisenau and Scharnhorst mines and the surrounding railways were occupied on September 16 without incident.

It is learned from Brussels that the German telegraphists have resumed work in a great number of districts, notably at Coblence and Wiesbaden, under the control of the Allied authorities.

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, Sept. 18.—M. Poincare's recent speech in reply to the German Chancellor, Dr. Stresemann, finds a favorable echo in part of the British press, notably in the Daily Mail, which approves the action of the premier in refusing to let go his booty for a shadow. The Evening News declares that Germany is again trying to feign passive resistance, the failure of which is recognised, but France is not so simple as to consent to it and will maintain the pledge of the Ruhr until Germany has paid.

ADOPT METRIC SYSTEM

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, Sept. 13.—The French metric system has been established in the Protectorate of Morocco.

Refugees Thank Empress Officers For Relief Work

Another eloquent testimonial regarding the work done by the officers and men of the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Australia in Yokohama during the earthquake and immediately thereafter has been received here. The letter, dictated by the refugees and passengers aboard the big vessel, follows:

On Board s.s. Empress of Australia at Sea. September 12, 1923.

Commander S. Robinson, R.N.R.

R.M.S. Empress of Australia Sir,

The Refugees and Passengers desire to express their intense admiration and pride in your handling of the many difficult and dangerous situations that arose during the whole period of the recent terrible catastrophe in Yokohama, in which the traditions of the British Mercantile Marine Service have been maintained.

The conduct of the officers and men under your command was admirable.

We owe to you our lives, and words are entirely inadequate to express our thanks and gratitude.

WILL REPATRIATE SIXTY RUSSIAN REFUGEES SOON

Through the efforts of the Refugee Relief Advisory Committee here some sixty Russian rfugees will shortly be sent Northward for repatriation, according to announcement of the committee yesterday.

The notification, which expresses particular thanks to the Shanghai Tramways Company for assisting in the printing of meal tickets for destitute refugees here, follows:

With the funds subscribed for repatriation we are going to ship off a batch of about 60 refugees to Manchuli as soon as the necessary formalities have been complied with. When this is done we shall have to devote our attention to the Soup Kitchen alone, as in the absence of funds our sphere of activity will be limited to feeding the refugees, until such time as general repatriation is feasible.

This means the Spring of next year at the earliest, for even were the necessary funds at our disposal it is a moot point whether it is desirable to repatriate refugees via Siberia in the heart of winter. As the money is not forthcoming and as no outside aid is visible at present we have to contemplate running the Soup Kitchen for at least another six months and I would most earnestly appeal to all to help us with this good work. The one meal we give refugees per day works out at but little over eight cents, all expenses having been cut down to a minimum and I have again to thank the Shanghai Tramway Co., for most generously promising to print us 100,000 meal tickets to help us through the next six months.

YOCHOW FEARS TROUBLE WHEN SOLDIERS COME

Troops Fill City And Water Police Flee To Avoid Them

(Independent News Service)

Yochow, Sept. 13.—Until yesterday everything had been quiet here in Yochow but in the afternoon the water police suddenly notified the U. S. Reformed Church Mission that they had decided to accede to its request to send an armed guard to Huping college.

Forty men left here for the school. However, before they arrived a steamer load of troops landed and mobbed into the city shortly before six o'clock. They met no opposition, for the remaining water police and the city police fled to Chengling Chi, while Li Ya-ping started across country in the direction of Pingkiang. Thursday afternoon several thousand more troops have landed and are much more disorderly that the first arrivals, and the city fears looting.

Last night all was quiet. Report says that approximately 3,000 men landed last night and that more are expected today. Also we received information this morning from the Hunan-Hupeh border that northern troops were leaving there today for Yochow. Of this we can not be sure. But if they came it will be to help Chao Heng-ti so perhaps there will be no trouble between these troops and the northerners.

LI IS REFRAINING FROM INTERVIEWS MAY GO ABROAD

After ascertaining the cool attitude assumed towards him by the local organisations General Li Yuan-hung has been refraining from seeing guests and members of the press for the last few days. His callers yesterday included General Ho Feng-yu, brother of the Military Governor of Shanghai, who represented the governor in his official capacity to extend his personal greeting to the ex-president. The day before yesterday, General Fan Yu-lin, Chief of Staff of General Lu Yung-hsiang, Director of Military Rehabilitation of Chekiang, saw General Li.

It is understood that General Li is contemplating taking a trip to some foreign country. In view of the fact that his daughter is now studying at Wellesley, it is probable that he will first visit America.

World Parley On Opium Trade Urged

(Reuter's Service)

Geneva, Sept. 18.—The League of Nations Opium Committee today heard a statement by Viscount Hardinge on the measures adopted by India to restrict and regulate the traffic.

Mr. Porter (America) spoke in favor of assembling an international conference as soon as possible, expressing the opinion that such a conference would have better results with the prestige of the League behind it. The United States was fully convinced that enforcement of the advisory committee's two resolutions would eradicate the evil.

Dr. G. C. Ballard Back From Japan

Dr. George C. Ballard, who went from Shanghai with the first Red Cross relief unit organised here to aid victims of the Japanese earthquake, returned from Japan yesterday on the steamer President McKinley.

Dr. Ballard, with other members of the local unit, was stationed at Kobe, caring for injured victims of the disaster who has been brought there from Yokohama and Tokio. He paid high tribute to the work done by the nurses.

Dr. Ballard is attached to the Rockefeller Foundation and is en route to the Philippines to engage in a study of tropical diseases. He expects to spend some time in Shanghai and elsewhere in China before proceeding to Manila.

Conseil d'Administration Municipale de la Concession Francaise de Changhai

NOTICE

MUNICIPAL LOAN OF 1923

8.000 debentures of Tls. 100 each
(issued at Tls. 97 each)

Rate of interest 6% per annum

The "Conseil d'Administration Municipale de la Concession Francaise de Changhai" hereby invite subscriptions for 8.000 debentures of Tls. 100 each, issued at Tls. 97 each according to the resolution passed at their General Meeting on the 14th May 1923.

The conditions on which the Debenture Certificates will be issued are:

1°.—The Debenture Certificates are transferable, and the person whose name is entered in the Register of Debenture Certificate or Certificates, shall alone be recognised and treated by the Council as the lawful and rightful holder and owner of such Debenture Certificate or Certificates.

2°.—The Debentures will be issued at Tls. 97 each.

3°.—The Debentures will be redeemable at par (Tls. 100 each) in not less than 10 years and not more than 30 years, from 1st December 1933 and according to the figures determinated by the Council.

4°.—The Debentures will bear interest at 6% per annum, payable on the 31st day of May and 30th day of November in each year, when interest warrants will be issued to the registered owners.

5°.—The Debenture Certificates will be issued and bear interest from 1st July 1923.

6°.—Applications for Debentures will be received at the Secretary's Office, Rue du Consulat, from June 20 next.

A cheque representing the amount of debentures asked for and payable on June 30th must be deposited at the same time.

7°.—Applications for Debentures under 97 will not be recognised by the Council.

8°.—For further informations, apply to Mr. P. Legendre, Secretary, French Municipal Council, Shanghai, 31st May 1923.

By order,
P. LEGENDRE
Secretary.

If you have business in the Far East—

The kind of a bank you need to help you is one whose business is exclusively of the Far East—

A BANK whose name and reputation will win the respect and confidence of your customers—a bank that is versed in the methods of the East: that knows its customs and markets—a bank that is your experienced business counselor as well as your financial agent.

Such a Bank is the
EQUITABLE EASTERN BANKING CORPORATION

ORGANISED and managed by the officers and directors of The Equitable Trust Company of New York, it will give you the same prestige abroad and the same personal service that distinguishes the parent organisation—with the added convenience of a separate bank devoted exclusively to Oriental business.

Call at our New York or Shanghai Offices, and let us tell you how we can help you.

Exchange Fluctuations

Asia Banking Corporation

September, 19, 1923

Spot bar silver was down ⅛d. and forward ⅛d. in London yesterday. The New York price was unchanged and the London-New York cross rate declined to 453½. The only change in our official quotations here today was a rise in the Franc rate to 1220. Our market here today was inclined to be firm with Banks good sellers particularly for near delivery. There were at all times sellers of Sterling at 3s. 1½d. for September delivery, 3s. 1⅝d. October and 3s. 1⅝d. November-December. There were sellers of Gold Dollars at 70⅞ for near and forward deliveries and sellers of Yen at 68⅜ with buyers at 68⅛. Banks were quoting 3s. 2⅛d., 72½ and 1270 for Sterling, Gold Dollar and Franc bills respectively. China sold silver for forward delivery in London yesterday and India bought, the market closing steady. New York report their market as being on the firm side with India a good buyer.

Hongkong Shares

Messrs. Moxon and Taylor of Hongkong write as follows in their weekly share report dated Hongkong, September 14.

We have had a fairly quiet market during the past week, but with a fair demand for certain stocks.

The Shanghai market is steady.

The following are the principal alterations since last week:—

Hongkong Banks:—After sales having been effected at $1,070, close with sellers at that price.

Unions:—Have eased off, a large number of shares having changed hands at $228 and a few at $229, and close with sellers at $227.

Cantons: Have firm buyers at $630 with no sellers.

Hongkong Lands: Have also eased off a little, shares having changed hands at $86.

Hongkong Hotels: Remain unchanged.

Cements: Have come to business at $28.20.

Kowloon Wharves: Have had a decline and close with buyers at $154, sales having been effected at $155 and close with sellers at $156.

Hongkong Docks: Remain steady at $152½.

China Providents: Have sellers at $24½ but shares are wanted under this rate.

China Sugars: Have had a rise and close with firm buyers at $219.

Hongkong Ropes: Have come to business at $40¼.

China Lights: Have buyers at $14.85 for Old and $14.70 for New shares.

Watsons: After coming to business at $22, close with buyers at $21¾.

Lane Crawfords: Are in great demand at $17¾.

"It's Over, Over There," Says Psychologist-Song Writer

Famous Bugle Call Used To Interpret Spirit of the Day

New York City.—Psychologists who predicate human action from observation of humans at play, say that America is due for a long era of peace. They saw this conclusion partly from a study of the songs and games which engross the energetic younger generation just now.

The new peace conference game with its pawns all moving for harmony, which children have substituted for checkers, is an interesting example. So is "Good Night," a waltz built on the bugle theme of "taps." This song sounds the peaceful end of the dance on most ball room floors about "three o'clock in the morning," these days.

Con Conrad, who wrote it, says he's finishing what George Cohan began when he built "Over There" on reveille.

"It's a sort of way of letting the public in on a grand celebration of the end of the war," Mr. Conrad explains. "Using 'taps' to close the dance today seems to emphasize that it's really 'over, over there.'

"I have just returned from two years in Europe where I tried several times to write the song, but the chaotic conditions got under my skin and I simply could not work on a relaxing peaceful tune. But here at home I could immediately sense that for us anyway, it really is 'over.'"

THREE CAUSES OF INDIGESTION
And One Tonic Method of Cure.

Reading at meals is a bad habit that often leads to acute Dyspepsia. Hurried meals and bolting food without proper mastication set up mischief that sometimes means years of suffering from weakened organs of digestion. An ill-chosen diet of indigestible food also quickly upsets the stomach. These are common causes of Indigestion, though chills, colds, anaemia, worry and low vitality (the last mentioned often induced by residence in the Tropics or the trying heat of China summer) also start the disorder.

It is folly to suppose that purgatives can cure Indigestion. Your distressed stomach needs help and that help should be in the natural form of good rich blood that will strengthen the organs of digestion and tone up the nerves which control them.

The correct way to treat a debilitated stomach is through Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People for these reasons: they renew and strengthen the blood supply; they give tone to the stomach; they impart a healthy appetite; they improve digestion, and enable the stomach to perform its work easily.

Study your stomach, reader. Never neglect the early signs of stomach weakness and indigestion such as flatulence, dizziness, heartburn, palpitation, loss of appetite, nausea, stomach pains, sick headaches, but start today the tonic treatment of and grow strong and well.

Medicine vendors everywhere sell Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, or direct and post free at $1.50 per bottle, $8 for 6 bottles, from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 60 Kiangse Road, Shanghai.

Earthquakes

YESTERDAY'S dispatches carrying news of the two latest earthquakes—in Malta and Sicily—to be recorded indicate beyond all doubt that the recent flurry in 'quakes is due to readjustments in the new formations of the earth's crust resulting from the recent terrific tremor in Japan. The shocks that levelled Yokohama and Tokio and caused untold destructions throughout the surrounding districts have been followed by minor earthquakes in all parts of the world.

Quickly following the Japan disaster several earthquakes were reported in various districts in Northern China, including a shake-up in that district known as "The Land Where the Mountains Walk." Next came a shock at Calcutta that took a toll of fifty lives; three minor shocks in the Philippines; a short but violent series of shocks at Eureka, California, and lastly the shocks at Malta and in Sicily.

None of them has proved to be really serious; they merely bear out the contention of the scientists who specialise in earthquake phenomena that the surface of the earth, pulled and stretched by the innumerable shocks, is readjusting itself.

Father Maso of Manila, an expert on earthquakes, has issued a statement there that the present series of tremors is merely the aftermath of Japan, and explains that there are three classifications of quakes—volcanic, tectonic and rockfall.

THE VOLCANIC TYPE

"To the volcanic type belong all those earthquakes that are intimately connected with volcanic eruptions caused by explosions or sudden thrusts and outbursts of steam and lava. Often they precede the eruption and are caused by the powerful push of the lava to overcome the obstructions found on its way to the exterior. These volcanic earthquakes, contrary to popular belief and to the ideas generally held for many centuries by scientists, are in reality of but slight importance and occur only in certain restricted districts. The dynamic action of these earthquakes is so rapidly exhausted that none of them is recorded at great distance of the origin even by the most sensitive instruments.

"The eruption of Taal Volcano, January 27 to February 8, 1911, offered a very typical series of these earthquakes. On the night of January 27, several earthquakes occurred in S. Luzon and in adjacent islands, while at the same time or very shortly afterward it was noticed that the principal crater of the volcano increased in activity.

"This activity as well as the frequency and intensity of the shocks went on increasing during the 28th and 29th, until at approximately 2:36 on the morning of the 30th there took place the greatest and most destructive eruption recorded in the history of the volcano. After this paroxysm of eruptive activity the volcano returned to its normal state in a short time, although the earthquakes continued to be very frequent during the three following days, January 31 and February 1 and 2, thus indicating that there was still an accumulation of energy in the interior of the volcano, but not enough to start new explosions. During the eruptive period—January 17 to Feb. 7—995 shocks were recorded in Manila Observatory, all of them between I and V of the Rossi-Forel scale. The destructive area of the earthquakes was a prolonged zone which took in the volcano itself, and the south-southwestern part of Bombon Lake along the Pansipit river to the towns of Lemery and Taal; a longitudinal extension of about 25 kilometers. Outside of the Archipelago seismographs beyond a distance of 1,000 kilometers were not affected.

"The reports of previous eruptions of Taal also mention of numerous volcanic earthquakes, which no doubt possessed the same characteristics as those occurred in 1911.

THE TECTONIC TYPE

"The tectonic type of earthquakes is caused by the sudden relief of strains, due to contractions and foldings in the crust of the earth; when these pass the limit of equilibrium and the modulus of elasticity of the crust, they give rise to rents and fractures and other sudden movements of more or less severity depending on the degree of the accumulated strain. This type comprehends the greater number of earthquakes felt in all parts of the world and in particular all those of greater intensity and extension. To it belong practically all the great Philippine earthquakes which occur in eastern Mindanao, in the Valley of the Agusan, and along the Pacific coast, which appear to be closely related to the great submarine trough, "the Philippine deep" of 9,780 meters. It happens the same on the China Sea and Celebes coast, and in the interior of the Archipelago along existing lines of fracture. Even many occurring in the Philippine volcanic region belong to this type; practically all which have great extension affecting an area of 400 kilometers diameter. Tectonic earthquakes are recorded all around the globe. Their origin is always several kilometers deep in the solid crust of the earth.

THE ROCKFALL TYPE

"The rockfall type embraces the earthquakes of small extent, which having their focus or seat of origin at a slight depth, are brought about by the fall of rock in caves and underground passages, by landslides, and in certain cases by the settling of superficial rock masses displaced by tectonic seismic motions. It appears that this is the predominant type of shocks felt in a few regions of the Philippines, in the following places: Nueva Vizcaya, Baguio, around the Isarog, in Butuan Bay, near Camotes Islands, and in the interior of Panay. Since it has been found that the cause of the main earthquakes is geologic, intimate relations between volcanic eruptions and earthquakes has been discarded. The original cause is certainly the same; evolution by compression and variations of equilibrium in the rotating globe, but the same cause shows two independent ways of activity. As these geological disturbances producing earthquakes are underground, where no instrument and scrutining eye can reach, the probability of predicting them is yet very far away."

THE TRAM PROBLEM

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS:

Sir: Referring to Mr. "Chee's" letter in your column of yesterday re the tramway inspector, I beg to say something happened this noon as follows:

At 12:15 today, I was riding on tram route 6 at the Bund and as it stopped at the corner of The Bund and Nanking Road, a foreign inspector was standing at that spot who, seeing that the car was so overcrowded pulled off some 3 or 4 persons travelling on footboard of both first and second classes from the car soon after he halted it. He then set the car off. No sooner had the car run a few yards than some other men chased after it and at last got on it, leaving the said car with even more passengers on it than it had before. The inspector at that time was still standing at corner of Bund and Nanking Road, and though he had seen this yet he did not pay any attention. There was ample time for him to perform his duty but he neglected it.

I am quite at a loss to understand that the duty of the tramway's inspector should be performed in such a careless way, or, is "negligence" the word?

Yours faithfully,
EDWARD.

NEW YORK UNIVERSITY ALUMNI

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS:

Dear Sir.—The Organisation Committee of New York University Alumni Club of Shanghai is quite sure that there must be a good representation of the University among both foreign and Chinese communities in this city.

However, as the Secretary of the N. Y. U. Alumni Association in New York cannot give us much information on Shanghai alumni and ex-students, we have to appeal to them to supply the Committee directly with their names and addresses.

All sons and daughters of the Purple and White will undoubtedly be glad to get acquainted. Communications should be addressed to Mr. Hsuan Wang, Office of Auditor, North Station, S.N.R. and S.H.N.R., Shanghai. Thank you for the valuable space. Yours truly,

TRANSMUTATION

When I return to earth I want to come
In daisy-time, with daisies on my breast,
In gossamer of woodland maiden-hair—
And woodsy sandals green with wayside moss.
The golden glooms will gleam against my brow,
Like stars that peer through vapory cloud-locks;
Like moths in moonlight, daisies white will drip
In ghostly garlands from transparent hands.

You will not see my eyes, my wind-blown hair,
You will not hear my voice; nor will you feel
My mist-enchanted arms; but you shall see
Green waving grass, pale yellow butterflies
Above a meadow, blossom-starred and sweet
Then somehow you shall know that I am there.

Chesterton Ballad

Miracle of Marne With Legend of Early Saint

The English language contains few eminent war poems. G. K. Chesterton's "Ballad of St. Barbara" (G. P. Putnam's sons, New York) deserves to stand with "Ye Mariners of England," "The Battle of the Baltic," and "The Revenge," in the anthologies of the future.

The balled deals with the legend of St. Barbara, the patron saint of the artillery and of those in danger of sudden death, and with the miracle of the Marne. The conflict is treated with gaunt realism, but the idea of the horrors is conveyed by suggestion rather than by detailed description. Speaking through the mouth of a Breton soldier, whose "sea-blue eyes were empty as his home beside the sea," the poet strikes the key-note of his tale:

There are more windows in one house than there are eyes to see;
There are more doors in a man's house, but God has hid the key;

Ruin is a builder of windows; her
legend witnesseth,
Barbara, the saint of gunners, and a stay in sudden death.

The poet never lets the reader forget that the Breton is engaged in a losing battle:

Our guns were set toward the foe;
we had no word for firing;
Grim in the gateway of St. Gond
the Guard of the tyrant shone;
Dark with the fate of a fallen star, retiring and retiring,
The Breton line went backward and the Breton tale went on.

Against this background of war Chesterton tells the legend of St. Barbara, whose

. . . sire was a master of many slaves.
A hard man of his hands.
They built a tower about her
In the desolate golden lands.

In trenchant verses Chesterton depicts the glory of battle for a righteous cause:

Blast of the beauty of sudden death, St. Barbara of the batteries
That blast the new white windows in the wall of all the world.

As the climax approaches the movement of the poem becomes spirited, in keeping with the haste of the pursuit. For the tide has turned; the line is surging forward,

. . the hand is raised behind us,
and the bolt strikes hard
Through the rending of the doorways, through the death-gap
of the Guard,
For the cry of the Three Colors in Conde and beyond,
And the Guard is flung for carrion
in the graveyard of St. Gond, Through Mondemont and out of it, through Morin marsh and on
With earthquake of salutation the impossible thing is gone,
Gaul, charioted and charging,
great Gaul upon a gun,
Tip-toe on all her thousand years and trumpeting to the sun.

In his preface to the American edition, Chesterton says: "One excellent critic on an excellent paper reminded me gently that most people in the modern world are agnostics, and very sensitive in their feelings; and it seems that to use religious language in their presence is like disregarding the warning hush on the entrance to a sick room. That the modern world is in many ways like a sick room I should be the last to deny; but I am not sure that all the invalids need nothing but sedative treatment. It seems to me a little unfair that liberty of opinion should take the form of somebody saying to me: 'It is highly indecent that your religion should be still alive, when my religion has been dead for some time.' I am quite ready to condone with him; but I cannot yet see that he has any right to complain of me. . . . I do not understand why any verse that suggests a battle must necessarily suggest a defeat. . . . I merely wish to put it on record, as it were, that all that has been most reviled as dismal and decaying superstition can at least produce something that is rebuked for vainglorious levity and vulgar high spirits."

The volume contains other poems, some of them of beauty and others keen in their satire, but the title piece overshadows them with its grandeur as the cathedral towers overshadow the houses of Bourges or of Beauvais.

The Evolution In Greece

BY CRAWFURD PRICE

Athens.—It is by no means easy to dissociate the war-time view of Greek politics from the developments which have recently taken place in that sorely tried kingdom. There has been a tendency—inevitable under the circumstances—to regard Hellas as divided into two groups, the one being Venizelist and pro-Entente, and the other Royalist and pro-German. At no time was this differentiation really justified, for, with the exception of an active minority, the Royalists were anti-Venizelists at home and neutralists in matters of foreign policy. The critical developments since the conclusion of the Mudros Armistice, however, have very drastically changed the entire outlook, and the situation in Greece today is such as commands the close attention of other members of the community of nations.

Two factors may be said to have dictated the course of events since the Mudros Armistice; of these, the greater was the war in Asia Minor, and the lesser the attempt of the respective parties in power to govern the country through an obligarchy. This, when Venizelos was defeated at the elections in 1920, we were faced, not so much with a demonstration of ingratitude for all the great Cretan had accomplished for Hellas, as with a revolt against the sufferings occasioned by the prolongation of the Anatolian campaign on the one hand, and against the oppressive regime established by a Venizelist camarilla at home on the other. If, upon his return, the late King Constantine had had the courage to end the war with Turkey and set up a really constitutional regime at home, all might have been well. But there is little doubt that the late monarch was a mere puppet in the hands of the Gounarist clique, who insisted upon prosecuting the war and continued to rule Greece by autocratic, tyrannical methods.

Circumstances, therefore, produced the beginnings of a Center Party, and there is every reason to believe that the recent military revolution was engineered by a curious combination of Venizelists and Royalists who set the interests of their country before any of their political leaders. For the same reason, the revolution met with general support in the country. It was heralded as a very necessary break-away from the old political feud, and its supporters undoubtedly believed that the revolutionary government would take speedy steps to hold new and free elections and restore untrammeled constitutional government.

These anticipations have up to the present not been realised, but there are signs that an election may shortly be brought about. There exist, of course, many in Greece who regard the present military obigarchy as the savior of the country, and who are ready to applaud its every action. But, on the other hand, there is undoubtedly a great body of public opinion which formerly supported the revolution, but which revolts against many of its methods, and considers that, by maintaining itself in office, it has destroyed its own justification. This movement probably commenced with the execution of the Royalist ministers—an act which shocked opinion in Greece almost as much as abroad. But it has gained full force from the apparent determination of the revolutionaries to cling to office, and their attempt (successful up to this moment) to sidetrack the holding of parliamentary elections. In the meantime, a regime as illiberal as that established by the successive Venizelist and Royalist governments has been set up by the revolutionaries, with the result that the present Government, whatever its qualities, is now regarded with hostility both by the anti-Venizelist sections of the population and also by a section of the Venizelist Party itself.

It is to this political evolution that Greece owes the formation of its Center (Radical) Party, which, from small beginnings, has gained rapidly in strength, and which in the opinion of many competent observers would be returned to office if the revolutionaries could be forced to hold the promised elections. These people describe themselves as the opponents both of Venizelism and the "old gang" of Royalist politicians; they declare that Venizelism, with its extreme aspirations abroad and its "destruction of the liberties of the Greek people" at home, is the principal cause of the miseries under which Greece labors today. As to the "old gang," the Radicals assert that the reaction against them was the genesis of their party, and they resolutely oppose the restoration of the political system with which they were associated.

Not the least interesting thing about the Radicals is their choice of a leader. As a general rule, in Greece a political personality arises and gathers round him a party, which rarely survives the leader's disappearance from the arena. In this latest case, however, the party itself was first formed and then proceeded to select its chief. The choice fell upon General Jean Metaxas, who may perhaps be regarded as the embodiment of its program.

Metaxas is not a politician. He is probably one of the most brilliant military strategists in Europe today—a fact which will be appreciated by those who followed at close quarters his masterly conduct of the Greek campaigns of 1912 and 1913. He broke with Venizelos in the beginning of 1915, when he declined, on military grounds, to agree to the participation of the Greek Army in the attack on the Dardanelles, except under such conditions as he considered would insure success. While the King was opposed to the Asia Minor enterprise, Metaxas remained an ardent supporter of his monarch; but when, on his return to Greece, the King acceded to the Gounarist demand to prosecute the war against Turkey, he withdrew from his Royalist association and had no intercourse with Constantine until the eve of the recent revolution. It will be seen that General Metaxas has always opposed Greek ambitions in Asia Minor, and since it is to those ambitions that the present plight of Hellas must be attributed, it is easy to understand why the new party has turned to him for leadership and guidance.

With an exceptionally brilliant man at their head, and a policy which must commend itself to a large section of the population, there would seem to be no reason why the Radicals should not exercise an important influence on the future of Greece. The measure of support enjoyed in the country by the revolutionaries cannot definitely be estimated, but it is the fact that the "old gang" are nonexistent as a political factor, while the old Venizelists are now divided up into several factions. In the opinion of the onlooker, it must obviously be desirable that the long overdue elections should be held withut further delay, for until this is done it will be impossible to inaugurate anything in the nature of a stable regime.

While Metaxas is an able leader, there are signs that he will meet considerable opposition from scattered elements in other parties which may be gathered under one banner. Alexander Zaimis is mentioned as the possible leader of these groups, in which case Greece might find itself divided between the respective coalitions.

The Great Pyramid Mystery

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS, "The Mysterious Science of the Pharaohs." It is under this title that a French astronomer, the Abbe Moreux, has just published in Paris, a book, suggested by the recent unearthing of Tut-ankh-Amen, which revives the strange theories of the Scottish astronomer, Piazzi Smythe, concerning the divinely inspired knowledge by which the builders of the Great Pyramid were guided.

Certainly if the engineering skill, the acquaintance with certain basal mathematical facts and principles, displayed by the pyramid builders were not "mysterious" they were at least astonishing, in view of the general state of human knowledge in these remote times. How the builders obtained their knowledge is, however, another question, and it does not seem to be at all necessary to assume that they were inspired by direct revelation from heaven.

In truth, that supposition immediately encounters a serious difficulty in the admitted fact that the curious data about the "squaring of the circle," or the value of the mathematical constant "Pi," the size of the earth's globe, the distance of the sun, etc., which are said to be preserved in the dimensions of the pyramid of Cheops, are all somewhat in error. This is not what would be expected of divine revelation.

On the other hand these same data are astonishingly close to the truth as revealed by modern science, and the question is a teasing one: How did the pyramid builders find them out, and then disappear leaving no trace of the steps by which they attained their surprising knowledge, but only the results embodied in the gerat pyramid itself? Let us see what some of these results were.

First, the pyramid has a perfectly square base, within very slight limits of error, and its four faces are oriented, within similarly inconsiderable limits of error, exactly toward the four cardinal points—east, west, north, south. Modern astronomical measurements can detect no error here exceeding five minutes of arc. A slight movement of the earth's crust might be theoretically assumed as a cause of variation during the thousands of years that the vast mass of masonry has been standing there.

Second, when Herodotus paid his famous visit to Egypt, and interviewed the Egyptian priests about the history and the curiosities of their wonderful country, they told him that the great pyramid had been so constructed that the number of units in the square of its vertical height exactly equaled the number of the same units contained in the area of each of the four triangular faces. The priests and Herodotus took this on the strength of tradition; modern measurements prove that the tradition was accurate.

Third, the perimeter of the base of the pyramid measures 931.32 meters. If this is divided by half the vertical height the quotient represents the quantity "Pi," or the ratio of the circumference to the diameter of a circle, usually given in figures as 3.1416 (which is only an approximation). In other words, it is claimed that the Pyramid of Cheops is an enduring monument of the "squaring of the circle," effected by unknown engineers in ancient Egypt, under divine inspiration.

Left to his own efforts man, after thousands of years of advancing science, has arrived at very closely the same solution of this problem that was attained by the pyramid builders, nobody knows how, four or five thousand years ago.

Fourth, the cubit measure used by the pyramid builders has a remarkable relation to the polar diameter of the earth, being one ten-millionth of the length of the earth's axis of revolution.

Fifth, the height of the pyramid is almost exactly one-millionth of the mean distance of the earth from the sun, as ascertained by modern science, which is not sure of its figures within fifty or a hundred thousand miles.

Sixth, the measure called the "pyramid inch" is one-hundred-billionth part of the distance traveled by the earth in its orbit every twenty-four hours.

Such are some of the most striking figures stated by the abbe Moreux, deriving from Piazzi Smythe. An obvious objection is that most of them may be fortuitous coincidences. But even then we must admit that the pyramid builders exhibited a marvelous knowledge (for their day) of engineering mechanics and mathematics. I quite agree with the abbe Moreux that the supposition that the great pyramid was built only for a tomb is inadmissible. It is a monument of an ancient alliance of astronomy with priestcraft.

A Treasure-Trove of Humor From His Newly Discovered Newspaper Writings

EXPLAINING IT

A member of the Texas legislature from one of the eastern counties was at the chrysanthenum show at Turner Hall last Thursday night, and was making himself agreeable to one of the lady managers.

"You were in the house at the last session, I believe?" she inquired.

"Well, madam," he said, "I was in the house, but the senate had me for about $45 when we adjourned.

FUTILITY

To be so near—and then to vanish
Like some unreal creature of the sense;
To come so near that every fibre, tingling,
Makes ready welcome; then to surge
Mysterious unknown. Ye gods!
What agony to feel thee slowly steal
Away from us when, with caught breath
And streaming eyes, and parted lips,
We fain would with convulsive gasp
And tortured features bow our frame
In one loud spasm of homage to thy spell!
But with what grief we find we cannot do it;
The dream is o'er—we cannot sneeze

A DISAGREEMENT

"Dat Mr. Bergman, vot run de obera house, not dread me right," said a Houston citizen. "Ven I go dere and vant ein dicket to see dot "Schpider und dot Vly," gompany do oder night, I asg him dot he let me in mit half brice, vor I was teaf py von ear, and cannot but one half of dot berformance hear; and dell me I should bay double brice, as it vould dake me dwice as long to hear de berformance as anypody else."

THE LAST TIME

There is nothing, on earth that saddens our hearts,
And grieves us so much as to know
That something we've done is the last, last time,
As long as we live here below.

Something To Think About

By Bruno Lessing

THE YOUNG GENERATION

It is rather a comical situation, when you come to think of it. We come into the world and work and struggle to establish a place for ourselves. Our parents try to make the task easier for us by giving us the benefit of their advice which is based upon their own experience. They went through the same thing.

We never take their advice. We insist upon learining for ourselves. The experience that we get is the best part of our training. But, no sooner have we found it all out for ourselves than we find enjoyment, in our maturity, in preaching the same stuff to the generation which is crowding upon our heels. And we become exceedingly annnoyed when they pay not the slightest attention to us.

At a convention of women's clubs, recently, one of the speakers said, "We must help the present generation, not by endeavoring to make them like us but by co-operating with them."

This speaker had a glimmering of light. No young generation ever wanted to be made like the old one. In fact, no young generation ever wanted to be made at all It wants to make itself. And the history of mankind has shown that each young generation knows its job.

Even more than that. No young generation wants the older generation to co-operate with it. Co-operation always results in interference in these matters. Every healthy young generation wants the older generation to mind its own business and keep its hands off.

Here is advice to ladies and gentlemen past the age of forty: Keep your community healthy. You will benefit by it. Provide all kinds of schools for the young generation in order to give it a chance. You will benefit by that, too, because these young generations mature quickly and you will be much happier, when you are sixty, to find yourself surrounded by educated and refined young people.

And stop there. Cut out the reform. Cut out the preaching and the wailing. And cut out the co-opration. Leave the young generation alone.

These young people know when they want to marry and whom they want to marry. They know whether they want to lead decent lives or not. Your example accomplishes infinitely more than your lamentations. They know when they want to dance and when they do not want to dance.

You cannot re-form them. They are the product of the fifty generations that produced them. All they want is a fair chance to develop and assert themselves. Give them that. And, beyond that, leave them alone.

Here is the newest thing in Shaving Sticks

Williams' Doublecap SHAVING STICK

With a full-hand hold—as big and convenient as the handle of your lather brush. The box is of non-corrosive metal that will last indefinitely. When the original stick is used up, get a Re-Load, which you can insert without fuss or bother, and without wasting the remaining wafer of the original stick.

Williams' Sticks, doubly wrapped in fibre and silk tissue, are climate-proof. They keep the soap always fresh.

Not in three generations has Williams' quick, thick, rich, beard-softening, skin-toning lather been equalled.

The soap in Williams' Double-Cap and Williams' Holder Top Sticks is precisely the same in quality.

Made by the Makers of the famous Williams' Talc Powders — perfectly borated, medicinal and toilet.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

What is Castoria?

CASTORIA is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. For more than thirty years it has been in constant use for the relief of Constipation, Flatulency, Wind Colic and Diarrhoea; allaying Feverishness arising therefrom, and by regulating the Stomach and Bowels, aids the assimilation of Food; giving healthy and natural sleep. The Children's Comfort—The Mother's Friend.

The signature of Chas. H. Fletcher is on every wrapper of genuine Castoria

Physicians Recommend Castoria.

"My patients invariably praise the action of your Castoria."
W. W. TURVER M. D., Buffalo, N. Y.

"During my medical practice I know of several cases where your Castoria was prescribed and used with good results."
K. MORGNER, M. D., St. Louis, Mo.

"Your Castoria is certainly the greatest remedy for children I know of. I know no other proprietary preparation which is its equal."
B. S. SCHWARTZ, M. D., Kansas City, Mo.

"I use your Castoria and advise its use in all families where there are children."
J. W. DINSDALE, M. D., Chicago, Ill.

"Your Castoria is the best remedy in the world for children and the only one I use and recommend."
AGNES V. SWETLAND, M. D., Omaha, Neb.

"I have used your Castoria as a purgative in the cases of children for years past with most happy effect, and fully endorse it as a safe remedy."
H. D. BENNER, M. D., Philadelphia, Pa.

T. T. Ching Is Sentenced To Die For Alleged $6,000,000 Embezzlement At Canton

Jumbled Kwangtung Finances Spell Doom For Shanghai Man And American University Graduate

Mr. T. T. Ching, a graduate of the University of Chicago and formerly managing director of the Provincial Bank of Kwangtung and Commissioner of Finance, has just been sentenced to death at Canton for the alleged embezzlement of six million dollars. Mr. Ching is now held in prison in chains while the authorities are discussing with Dr. Sun Yat-sen the procedure to be carried out in executing him.

Mr. Ching is well known in Shanghai as he lived here previous to the time he served in the Canton Government for a considerable period of time. He returned to Hongkong when Dr. Sun resumed control of Canton and later went over to Canton, where he was arrested.

According to information received from THE CHINA PRESS Canton correspondent, Mr. Ching was lured to Canton with the promise of being given the position of Director of the Canton Mint. Because of the deplorable state the finances of Canton had fallen into as a result of the changing governments and the heavy drain of the Yunnan troops members of the "Young Sun" party are said to have induced Dr. Sun to swear out a warrant for Ching's arrest unless he made a heavy financial contribution to the Constitutionalist cause.

RUSE SUCCEEDS

Mr. Ching was wary of returning to Canton but was finally induced to do so through the promise of the lucrative Mint position. He was escorted by the Chief of Police and held a conference with Dr. Sun. After the conference the Chief of Police, according to our correspondent's information, suggested that they have dinner on one of the many Flower Boats now gracing the river at Canton before Mr. Ching returned to Hongkong. En route to the Flower Boat the Chief suggested that they stop by the police station for a moment while he signed one or two important documents.

Once inside the station the Chief broached the idea of a contribution of half a million to the Constitutionalist cause. Mr. Ching merely laughed. His laugh soon faded, however, as the Chief informed him that he had a warrant for his arrest and he would not be able to leave the station until a contribution was made.

Mr. Ching finally realized the seriousness of his plight and dickered for his release upon the payment of a lakh. While a messenger took the letter he wrote requesting the money to his relatives in Hongkong Mr. Ching was held in jail, being provided, however, with every luxury. A special bed, bedding, and other furniture was purchased at Sincere's in Canton and Mr. Ching lived like a king until the messenger returned with the money.

GREEDINESS

The officials, surprised at the ease with which Mr. Ching had raised the money, are said to have decided they might as well get a little more, and so informed Ching that the ante had been raised and that he would not be released until he produced two more lakls. After a much longer interval Mr. Ching's relatives, through mortgaging some of his property, raised the additional money and paid it over. The Canton authorities are then reported to have held out for the additional two lakhs to make it half a million, arguing that Ching could well afford to pay that price as he had gotten away with six million. Mr. Ching was either unable or unwilling to pay the additional money, however, and now comes the information that he has been sentenced to death.

Mr. Ching's adherents assert that he did not embezzle anything from the Provincial Bank but that the six million was expended in promoting Dr. Sun's ill-fated Northern Expedition, and that the last of the money was paid over to Dr. Sun himself on board the cruiser on which he took refuge when he fled.

Ching became well-known among the Southern community for his brilliant work in improving the Tai Sha Tao of Canton and dredging the Whampoa to enable bigger vessels to enter the Southern port.

Ching was charged with having embezzled Dr. Sun's war chest to the amount of $2,370,000 banknotes and $1,500,000 specie and was ordered to be tried by a special court martial by Dr. Sun, consisting of Ex-Governor Hu Han-min, General Cheng Tseng and Mr. Lo Yi-chum. Wu Ti-cheng, former Mayor of Canton, acted as prosecuting attorney. The prisoner was found guilty and sentenced to die, while his property was ordered to be confiscated to repay the funds embezzled by him.

A rider in the verdict recommends that Dr. Sun Yat-sen exercises his special power vested in him by extending clemency to the prisoner, who had meritted consideration, the judges said, for having raised funds for the Southern Generalissimo in time of war. But up to the present, no declaration has yet been made by Dr. Sun.

Ching was educated at Mills Institute, Oahu College, Hawaii; and Standford, Palo Alto and Chicago Universities. During the revolution, he served under the Kuomingtang flag and was given the Commission on Public Works in Canton after the historical event. Later, he became Governor of the Provincial Bank of Kwangtung and Commissioner of Finance.

If Moon Is Out of Reach, Try Spotlight Substitute

Helen Moretti Finds Singing Urge Will Always Find a Way

If you can't have the moon, the spotlight makes a very good substitute. At least so Helen Moretti has found.

Helen grew up expecting to be a grand opera singer. She came of a long line of operatic stars and she had a voice that was said to be a credit to the family. But there was a serious drawback — Helen hadn't the money for the intensive training that opera demands.

"I was determined to sing, yet I had to earn money," Miss Morretl explains. It looked like an unsolvable problem until one day the head of a vaudeville agency happened to hear me warbling. He offered me a contract at more than I could have made in grand opera after all my training, and I took him up.

"Since then I've learned several things. One is that vaudeville is not necessarily low-brow. Also, that in it you meet a wider range of people, and if you have the 'uplift' instinct you can help educate them.

"Take for instance 'Tell Me a Story,' a fox trot ballad I sing, written by the composers of that unforgetable 'Whispering.' It's high class and I have trained my audiences to like it and ask for a repetition of it. They prefer it, indeed, to other selections.

"So that's why I tell the young girl who's eating her heart out over grand opera today to try vaudeville. She'll like it and pretty soon the spotlight will seem brighter to her than the moon ever did."
